Las Cruces Girl Tells of Alleged Assault by Domingo Montoya.

mingo Montoya.

Josephina Hernandez, on the stand Priday morning, told the story of the alleged assault upon her by constable Domingo Montoya on May 25, in the trial of Montoya, now under way in the 11th district court.

During the course of her testimony the girl frequently hesitated and, on the suggestion of attorney W. D. Howe of the defence, the court room was ordered cleared of spectators by judge Dan M. Jackson.

Born in Las Cruces.

The witness stated she was born in Las Cruces and came to El Paso about nine months ago. The last six months she has spent at the Rescue Home. The first time she met Domingo Mentoya she was living at the home.

Describes Assault.

She then described a ride which she took with Montoya in an auto which included a trip to the White House inn in the lower vailey and of the assault which, she testified, occurred on the way back from the lim. She also testified that she had been given it by Montoya and that she had been given it by Montoya.

Came Here With Circus.

On the cross examination she admitted that she had come to El Paso with a circus. The witness declared that, when the car was stopped on the way back from the White House inn, she had clied out, but admitted that she had come to El Paso with a circus. The witness declared that, when the car was stopped on the way back from the White House inn, she had called out, but admitted that she had come to El Paso with a circus. The witness declared that, when the car was stopped on the way back from the White House inn, she had called out, but admitted that and did not attempt to run away. She stated that, when she reached Petra's home, she was so sick she had to go to bed.
